THE GREAT REGATTA

BY MAX ADLER.

It seems to me that the newspapers made a mistake in not reporting more fully the facts about the canal boat regatta upon the Kentucky canal on the 8th of June. Three boats entered for the race, which was for a new half-inch Russia hemp towline. They were the Roaring Maria, of Manayunk-Schlagel, captain; the Reveler, of Conshohocken—Brown captain, and La Sylphide, of Pottstown—Capt. Hicks. The leader upon the Roaring Maria's team was a cream-colored mule, recently imported from Idaho; the Reveler had three brown mules, and La Sylphide was bet against heavily, because Capt. Hicks tied her up to three second-hand omnibus horses, one of which had the heaves.

The start was made at 9:30 a. m., with La Sylphide in the lead, in consequence of the defective nature of the wind of the leading omnibus horse, and because good judges generally regarded the hind horse as a glandered ruin. The Roaring Maria came second. The false start was made, owing to the cream-colored mule from the west having obtained an enormous impression that the course ran due south. The boy who was driving him had great difficulty in convincing him that the route ran directly north, and during the controversy the animal kicked Mr. Duglinson, of Percocoy, one of the judges, in the stomach with such violence that Mr. Duglinson curled all up on the towpath and was carried home on the lid of La Sylphide's mizzen hatch. But a moment later the racers got off, Capt. Hicks' horse going into action in fine style, although the view prevailed that the two front horses were pulling the glandered ruin in addition to the boat.

La Sylphide walked the water like a thing of life, her log making one knot an hour as her speed. The good form displayed by Capt. Hicks in his superb management of the helm was universally remarked, and the betting began to be rather more favorable to him.

The Roaring Maria, however, kept well up, and it seemed likely that if Capt. Schenck could command breath enough to continue to swear at the boy, and the boy's lungs would hold out so that he would not be compelled to diminish the velocity of the epithets that he was hurling at the mule, the Roaring Maria would hold her own.

The Conshohocken Reveler did magnificently upon her first spurt, but about 200 yards further on, her towline snapped, and the boat sheered and ran against the bank. When Capt. Brown had pushed her off with a scantling, and expressed his feelings in the most violent adjectives that he could think of, the rope was tied; and it was hard to make up the lost ground, especially as the hind mule of the team got his leg over the swimmer, and was thrown partly into the air every time the leaders gave a jerk.

At the end of the first quarter it was reported that La Sylphide's last horse was beginning to fall to pieces; but Capt. Hicks sent his brother ahead, and he asked to the animal's tail an adjustable gunpowder detonator, warranted to give six explosions a minute. This seemed to give the horse new life, for he pulled till the rope was taut as a piano string.

But the Roaring Maria was gaining—that was clear; and Capt. Schenck's friends were beginning to offer odds, when the cream-colored mule suddenly stopped, and kicked the boy carefully over the bank into the canal. While Capt. Schenck was hauling the boy out with a boathook, the mule was struck by the thought that he might perhaps win the race by taking a short cut overland, so he bolted up the hill, with the evident intention to run the Roaring Maria across Belcher's apple orchard, through Roxborough, and around by the turnpike.

While things were at a standstill, the Reveler came booming along, and her bow went bang into the Roaring Maria's rudder, knocking it into kindling wood. At the same time the Reveler's mules got tangled in the Roaring Maria's towline, and as soon as the cream-colored mule abandoned the orchard route and started downhill like a rocket, the Reveler's team was dragged into the canal. Capt. Schenck then proceeded to give his views at length, and in detail, concerning Capt. Brown's ancestry, his relations, his seamanship and his sense.

A moment later they clinched, and the towpath was covered with an assortment of captains, towlines, boys, mules and miscellaneous effects. Capt. Schenck had just got on top of Capt. Brown and was about to argue with him, and to bite his nose, when news came that La Sylphide had reached the stake boat, and won.

This settled the matter, excepting that two of the judges refused to award the prize on the plea that the use of the adjustable gunpowder detonator on the spavined wreck in Hick's team counted as foul.

The value of these aquatic sports as a means of developing the capacities of a maritime nation like ours, is inestimable.—N. Y. Weekly.

Herefords in the Harvest.

The great wheat harvest in Kansas is on and the rush of the "Herefords" Kansasward has begun. The term "Herefords" has been bestowed by Kansas upon the white-faced men from the cities who throng into the harvest fields at this time of the year, and it will require no diagram to make clear the aptness of the application.

HIS OLD SWEETHEART

Taken to the Penitentiary By West Virginia Man.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Sept. 20.—The trying ordeal of taking to prison his former sweetheart has fallen to the lot of Guard H. F. Williams, of the Moundsville penitentiary. This evening at Grantsville he will remove from the Calhoun county jail Mrs. Gene Blackshire, convicted of complicity in the murder of her husband, Henry Blackshire, six months ago. She will be brought back to this city by Williams and placed in the Wood county jail before being taken to the penitentiary, where she is sentenced to serve three years.

When Williams entered the jail at Brantsville and saw the woman for the first time since she refused him her hand in marriage and told him that she loved "Henry better and will marry him," she fell back in her chair, and said:

"My God, it is you who are sent to see me in disgrace. Why could they not have sent someone else?"

Mrs. Blackshire is on the verge of physical collapse, and at frequent intervals prays that she may be saved from serving the term in the penitentiary, saying that she is innocent and a just God would not permit the innocent to suffer.

Mrs. Blackshire employed two men—Bub McCrosky and Louis Hendricks—to kill her husband, and evidence was shown at the trial that assisted in the murder. Her illicit relations with Hendricks and other men, as well as her desire to get her husband's life insurance—$1,000—led to the crime. Blackshire was first poisoned, presumably by his wife, and later shot to death by the hired assassins, who are now serving life sentences for the crime. The woman's sentence is generally recognized as light, in view of the crime.

HOLLAND CASE

Set For Trial At Benton Next Thursday.

The trial of Sheriff Walter Holland of Murray, for killing Hardy Keys, is set for September 28, at Benton Marshall county, a new trial having been granted him at the last term of court.

Mr. Holland was tried at the last term of court at Benton and given five years in the penitentiary. Special Judge Eli Brown granted Holland a new trial. On account of the prominence of persons concerned the case has attracted much interest. A change of venue was granted and the case removed to Marshall county says the Paducah News Democrat.

Attorneys for the defendant Holland have filed a motion for the return of the case to Calloway county, setting forth as a reason that it was entirely unnecessary to remove the case from that county, and that there was nothing to deter the jury in Calloway county in doing its duty in the case, besides being an injustice to him and putting him to unnecessary expense and inconvenience, and that its removal by the commonwealth was unprecedented in the state.

James Coleman, of Murray, John K. Hendrick of Paducah, and James B. Barnett of Cadiz, are counsel for Holland, and Judge William M. Reed of Paducah and Sam Crossland of Mayfield, represent the prosecution.

The Colonel's Waterloo.

Colonel John M. Fuller, of Honey Grove, Texas, nearly met his Waterloo, from Liver and Kidney trouble. In a recent letter, he says: "I was nearly dead, of these complaints, and although I tried my family doctor, he did me no good; so I got a 50c bottle of your great Electric Bitters, which cured me. In consideration the best medicine on earth, and thank God who gave you the knowledge to make them." "Sold and guaranteed to cure, Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Kidney Disease, by R. C. Hardwick druggist, at 50c a bottle."
